

TRAVERTINE

TRAVERTINE

- A natural stone created by the accumulation of mineral deposits from hot springs, leading to a distinctive porous surface marked by pits and holes. This stone is recognized for its unique texture, which features visible voids and veins that can be filled or left open, based on aesthetic preferences.
- The natural travertine tones range from soft ivory and light creamy white to rich golden walnut and honey tones, silvery gray, dark red, and warm coffee tones.
- Travertine is a durable and long-lasting natural stone, noted for its resistance to scratches, heat, and moisture. This adaptable material is suitable for various uses, such as flooring, walls, patios, pool decks, countertops, and wall cladding in commercial and residential settings.
- Natural Stone Resources provides a range of travertine options in different colors, finishes, and sizes. Their product lineup includes field tiles, mosaics, trims, slabs, pavers, pool copings, wall caps, veneers, and flagstones.
- NSR Marketing displays include library boards, 12x24 display tiles with trims, 7x7 and 7x14 ID cards that are part of NSR's countertop display program, 3x6 sample cuts and a catalog.
